Light, Gesture and Color...Sometimes! I was very fortunate to be able to take on of the last workshops taught in New York City by the great Jay Maisel. Jay drilled a lot of things into our heads during our week with him – and one of them turns out to be “light, gesture, and color”. For Jay, the best images had all three: great light, a ...

"Finding light, gesture, and color is a little bit like trying to hold water in the palm of your hand. If you squeeze, it's gone. If you're patient, it will stay." In this excerpt from Light, Gesture, and Color , Jay Maisel shares his thoughts on these three aspects of photography.

Light Gesture and Color \(Signed and Dated by Jay Maisel\)

Gesture holds its own no matter what the light is. The light can enhance it, but it cannot destroy it. Why? Gesture has identity and it is less vulnerable than color, which can lose its identity to light. Gesture will survive whatever kind of light you have. Gesture can triumph over anything because of its narrative content.
